Life to me is not measured in years,
but laughter, smiles and tears.

Thanks mom and dad, I love you both! Thanks to all my friends who helped me make it- I'll miss all of you. Thanks Mr. Hulburd for a wonderful year!! Keep in touch.

Juan Carlos Alfaro

Where is it I've read that someone condemned to death says or thinks, an hour before his death, that if he had to live on some high rock, on such a narrow ledge that he'd only room to stand, and the ocean, everlasting darkness, everlasting solitude, everlasting tempest around him, if he had to remain standing on a square yard of space all his life, a thousand years, eternity, it were better to live and live! Life whatever it may be!...How true it is! Good God, how true! Man is a vile creature!...And vile is he who calls him vile for that, he added a moment later.

Anyway, I kept picturing all these little kids playing some game in this big field of rye and all. Thousands of little kids, and nobody's around- nobody big, I mean except me. And I'm standing on the edge of some crazy cliff. What I have to do, I have to catch everybody if they start to go over the cliff-I mean if they're running and they don't look where they're going I have to come out from somewhere and CATCH them. That's all I'd just be the catcher in the rye and all...It's funny. Don't ever tell anybody anything. If you do, you start missing everybody.

After what seemed like forever, Diana lifted her eyes to look at Benjamin's face one last time. What she saw, however, was Benjamin no more. Instead, surrounded by smoky ashes, was the small, glowing sphere they had seen on the stage the night before. Diana, in a haze of bewilderment, found her way out of the hospital and stood on the pavement gasping in the crisp, morning air. She began to stumble in the direction of her own apartment and unknowingly stepped into a small puddle of thick, black slime.

Cautiously, Nancy stepping into the empty hall. Violet moonlight filtered through an open window and voices from the past crouched in the dark corners waiting to fill her strawberry blonde head with memories of times forgotten. Music filtered through the cracks in the walls as shadows spoke in the faded air:
"The CLUE, Nancy! The MESSAGE!"

Obeying her heart, Nancy bent down to examine a crumpled piece of paper at her feet:

As I was walking back from my evening meal I happened to glance up and see a sunset in it's full blossom of colors, stretching out across the sky.

It's glow silouetted the eternally growing and quickly changing trees of the fall, diminishing their once thought unsurpassable beauty.

I stood and watched it diminish and felt it say good-bye, good-bye to the day and good-bye to a beautiful summer we shared.

John Claflin

Were we happy tonight because we were happy or because once, a long time back, we had been happy? Was our happiness tonight like the light of the moon, which does not come from the moon, for the moon is cold and has no light of it's own, but is reflected light from far away? I turned that notion around in my head and tried to make a nice tidy little metaphor out of it, but the metaphor wouldn't work out, for you have to be the cold,dead, wandering moon, and you have to have been the sun,too, way back, and how the hell can you be both the sun and the moon? It was not consistent. It was not tidy. To hell with it...

Robert Crossman

If you think you'll succeed, you will.
If you think you'll achieve, you do.
If you think in terms of winning
Then you'll come shining through

If you think you can conquer, you can
If you think you'll make it, you'll find
That 80% of winning
Comes from a state of mind

It's not always the fastest one,
Or the strong man.
Who is the crowed in the race called life
It's those who think they can.

David Cunningham

"What's that on your shoulder?" "What?"
That, on your shoulder.
It's my head.
Ah, is that root of all your problems?
No.
Then what is your problem?
I wouldn't say I got what you'd call a chip on my shoulder.
No. There are just some people i can't get along with.
Yeah.
I mean i've tried-and then i've really tried, Yeah.
It never seems to work out, honey.
Well what are we gonna say to these people? John and Exeine there's a BIG UGLY CITY out there.
You wanna see it?
Yeah, i wanna see it.
Well look to my eyes and you can see it.
What's wrong with me?
What's wrong with me?
It ain't non of your goddamn business.

The Caterpillar and Alice looked at eachother for some time in silence: at last the caterpillar took the hookah out of its mouth, and addressed her in a languid, sleepy voice.
"Who are you?" said the caterpillar
This was not an encouraging opening for a conversation. Alice replied rather shyly, "I-I hardly know, Sir, just at present-at least I know who I was when I got up this morning, but I think I must have been changed several times since then." -Lewis Carroll

Each path is only one of a million paths. Therefore, you must always keep in mind that a path is only a path. If you feel you must now follow it, you need not stay with it under any circumstances. Any path is only a path. There is no affront to yourself or others in dropping it if that is what your heart tells you to do. But your decision to keep on the path or to leave it must be free of fear and ambition. I warn you: look at every path closely and deliberately. Try it as many times as you think necessary. Then ask yourself and yourself alone one question. It is this: Does this path have a heart? -Don Juan

Now that we're aquainted, you and I,
By me won't you come over and sit?
I've found along the way what makes you laugh, and
By me, though, I think some tears were found too.
Though surely none were looked for.

Now that we're sitting each our sides beside,
to me, couldn't you please something say?
You've found that I seldom say much back, but to me, it seems to you I say the most.
Though surely it's not enough.

Now that we're talking each to other,
from me, wouldn't you take a gift?
Me is all I have that I hope you want,
from me, and sometimes I've been not very much
Though surely you make me more.

And now that I need you,badly,
With me won't you stay for awhile?
I've found that everything's better when I'm
With you, so won't you stay with me awhile?
or if not, as longer as you can! -P.B.

So the little prince tamed the fox. And when the hour of his departure grew near-
"Ah," said the fox, "I shall cry"
"It is your own fault," said the little prince, "I never wished you any sort of harm; but you wanted me to tame you..."
"Yes, that is so," said the fox
"But now you are going to cry" said the little prince
"Yes, that is so."
"Then it has done you no good at all!"
"It has done me good," said the fox, "because of the color of the wheatfield." and then he added:
"Go and look again at the roses. You will understand now that yours in unique in all the world. Then come back to say goodbye to me, and I will make you a present of a secret."

TO THE HUMANS OF THE PHILLIPS ANDOVER COMMUNITY:

Over the last two weeks you've only seen me once but I've been watching you, loving all that I've seen, and beating my hairy chest with a fierce intensity.

I watched your leaders at the Senior Leadership Conference when they spent two days in my kingdom, the sanctuary. There they were fifty-seven different Andover seniors and faculty members arriving early not only to see their friends but more importantly to plan ahead and to decide upon their goals to make this year special for every member of the Andover community.

That was their goal-to make every one of you here feel that you contribute to this community and that this community knows you are there.

They worked together, laughed together, and have ultimately set a special t one for the Andover family in the coming year. They taught an ape, a hairy senseless beast, how possible and rewarding it is for a diverse group of people to form a warm community while maintaining individuality.

Warmth- yes it was certainly the warmth that impressed me the most about this group of senior leaders. Maybe it is because I live the life of what you would call a hermit- eating my coconuts by myself and never getting the chance to learn how other apes dress, and talk, and most importantly-beat their leather-skinned chests. But from my behind-the-bushes prospective it was clear to me that your senior leaders wanted this feeling of warmth to flow from the conference to orientation. Well, even a senseless ape like me can easily tell that it did. When I performed the Gunga Dance for all the new students at my festival, I could feel that warmth again. I saw everyone cheering and feeling close. I saw the new students smile and laugh at my show as though - as though my appearance was humerous to them.

Well, though I really wish I could, I can not write on much further. But before I go, I must give to you, my only human friends in the whole wide world, a tad bit of ape advice and my out-look for the coming year.

First my advice-

Andover belongs to you. It is your home and as members of this Andover family you should always feel and strive to make others feel totally comforatable here. Warmth is essential to your community. Over the last two weeks I've seen you create and maintain it. Don't lose it. Don't let the feeling of warmth stop with the end of orientation. Instead, heed my advice, the advice of a lonely ape, -thrive on the individuality and diversity of this Andover community.

Now my outlook-

If this year ends in the same way it has begun, the 1985-86 school year here at old P.A. will become a year for us all to remember.

Best of luck-I've got my eye on you all.

Love,
Gunga
